CHAPTER ONE:

NOUNS.

A noun is a naming word. Nouns refer to names of things, ideas, or situations. There are several ways of classifying nouns.

Countable and uncountable nouns

Concrete or abstract nouns

Common or proper nouns

Collective nouns

Compound nouns

(A) Countable and uncountable nouns

Look at the lists below

List A

Pen

Man

Poem

Son

Pin

List B

Water

Ink

Wool

Mud

Darkness

The items in list A can be described using numerals, e.g. one pen, five men, six poems e.t.c.

List B consist of items that would be impossible to quantify numerically.

We cannot say one water, five muds e.t.c.

The items in list A are countable and those in B are uncountable.

Nouns for materials such as glass, wood e.t.c and those for liquids e.g. milk, oil, e.t.c, are usually uncountable. Other uncountable nouns are the class called abstract nouns. These include such nouns as love, excitement, concern e.t.c.

B. CONCRETE AND ABSTRACT NOUNS

Concrete nouns are those that are appreciated with any of the five senses. These senses are sense of touch, sight, smell, taste and sense of hearing.

Below is a table of several nouns and the senses that they appeal to.

	NOUN	TOUCH	SIGHT	SMELL	TASTE	SOUND
1.	Wood	√	√	√	√	<input type="checkbox"/>
2.	Dust	√	√	√	√	<input type="checkbox"/>
3.	Smoke	<input type="checkbox"/>	√	√	?	<input type="checkbox"/>
4.	Fire	√	√	√	?	√
5.	Book	√	√	√	√	<input type="checkbox"/>
6.	Water	√	√	<input type="checkbox"/>	√	√

	Love	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
	Justice	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
	Understanding	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
	Humour	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>

Nouns 1-6 can appeal to any of the five senses, they are concrete. Nouns 7-10 are abstract.

C. COMMON AND PROPER NOUNS

Common nouns are names that are shared by common classes of things. For instance, the term 'boy' is a noun which refers to 'male youth'. All male youths share this common term.

Proper nouns are specific names of people, things or places. All abstract nouns are common nouns unless they are given names for certain stylistic purposes.

Proper nouns are names given to specific entities. For example, Peter, Monday, June, English e.t.c

The first letter of all proper nouns is capitalized in writing. Proper nouns do not have plural forms but common nouns are pluralized.

D. COLLECTIVE NOUNS

These nouns are (collectively) identified as a group.

Some collective nouns are, Audience, Congregation, Crowd, Swarm, Class, Group, Staff, School e.t.c.

E. COMPOUND NOUNS

These are nouns, which are formed by more than one word, i.e two, or more words are compounded to form a noun.

Compound nouns may be formed by: - e.g. Kitchen table, riverbank, bedroom.

Noun + noun

Gerund + noun

e.g. waiting list, dining room, swimming pool e.t.c

Noun + Gerund

e.g. name calling, weight lifting, sight seeing e.t.c

Noun + preposition + noun

e.g. mother – in – law

Sister – in – law

Noun + preposition + gerund

e.g. Doctors – in – waiting

NOUNS

Singular and Plural.

In the previous topic, we looked at the different ways of classifying nouns. We shall now look at ways of deriving plurals from singular nouns.

The plural of a noun is usually made by adding S to the singular.

e.g. Book - books

Cow- cows

Shoe – shoes.

Nouns ending in ‘O’ ‘ch,’ ‘sh’, ‘ss’ or ‘x’ form their plurals by adding ‘es’.

e.g. Singular

Tomato

Church

Brush

Kiss

Box

Plural

tomatoes

churches

brushes

kisses

boxes

Nouns ending in ‘y’ following a consonant form their plural by dropping the ‘y’ and adding ‘ies’

Singular

Baby

Country

Fly

Plural

Babies

Countries

Flies

(iv) Nouns ending in ‘f’ or ‘fe’ drop the ‘f’ or ‘fe’ and add ‘-ves’

Singular

Half

Life

Shelf

Wife

Plural

Halves

Lives

Shelves

Wives

(v) Nouns ending in ‘y’ following a vowel form their plural by adding ‘s’

Singular

Boy

Way

Donkey

Plural

Boys

Donkeys

A few nouns have irregular plural derivations.

Some form their plural by a vowel change

Singular

Foot

Tooth

Goose

Mouse

Woman

Plural

Feet

Teeth

Geese

Mice

Women

(b) Some nouns remain unchanged for both singular and plural

Singular	Plural
Sheep	Sheep
Water	Water
Fish	Fish

Collective nouns can take a singular or plural verb.

Singular if we consider the word to mean single group or unit e.g. The audience is laughing

The audience are laughing

Certain words are always plural.

These include, police, clothes, trousers, pajamas, scissors, spectacles, shears, glasses e.t.c

These take a plural verb.

(ix). Some words of Greek or Latin origin make their plurals according to the rules of Greek or Latin.

e.g. Phenomenon	-	Phenomena
Memorandum	-	Memoranda
Oasis	-	Oases

(x) Normally the last word in a compound noun is made plural.

e.g. Boy friend	Boyfriends
Lucky winner	Lucky winners

(xi) Where man or woman is prefixed, both parts are made plural

e.g. Man nurse	Men nurses
Woman driver	Women drivers

(xii) Compound nouns formed by verb + er or nouns and adverbs have their first word changed.

e.g. runners up, lookers on e.t.c

(xiii) Compound nouns formed by a noun + preposition + noun have the first word changed for plural.

e.g. Sister – in – law	-	Sisters – in – law
Kenyan – at – heart	-	Kenyans – in – heart

(ix) Initials can be made plural.

e.g. M.O.D. (Master on Duty)	-	M.O.DS
VIP	-	VIPS
DC	-	DCS

3. ARTICLES IN ENGLISH

Articles come before nouns or noun clauses.

The indefinite article 'THE'

USES:

When the noun is known to the reader or the hearer

e.g. The sun cast its golden rays in to the clouds

I gave him a letter. He tore the letter into pieces

Before known natural physical features.

e.g. The Nile, the Amazon, the Indian Ocean e.t.c

In certain names of countries which may comprise of an adjective and a noun. e.g. The United Kingdom

The United Arab Emirates e.t.c

In proper nouns with a plural form.

e.g. The Chinese

The Philippines

Before superlatives

e.g. The best boy

The disciplined girl

Before an adjective used as a noun to give the meaning 'all the'

e.g. the youth, the poor, the rich e.t.c

Before comparatives expressing parallel increase or decrease. e.g. the older he becomes, the wealthier he gets.

The higher you go, the cooler it becomes.

Before certain expressions of time.

e.g. the next morning

The day after

When the noun is considered unique or of its kind

e.g. the Equator, the Rift valley, the Earth e.t.c

Before proper nouns consisting of noun + of + noun

e.g. the Cape of good hope.

The United States of America

In names of people when referring to a whole family.

e.g. the Mwikali's (i.e. all members of her household)

Before titles containing 'of'

e.g. the president of Kenya

the Kabaka of Uganda e.t.c

Omission of the:

- i. Before names of people except No.(xi) above.
- ii. After a noun in the possessive case
e.g. we say the boy's cousin NOT the cousin of the boy Before names of games
e.g. we say soccer NOT the soccer

Definite Articles

a / an

Both these articles are used similarly except that 'a' is used before nouns beginning with a consonant sound and 'an' comes before nouns beginning with a vowel sound.

The two articles are used before singular countable nouns.

e.g. a book
a church an egg
an hour

They are also used in certain expressions of quantity. e.g. a dozen a couple
a glass of water e.t.c

They are used with numbers such as a hundred, a thousand, a million e.t.c

Before expressions of distance, Time, speed, ratio e.t.c

e.g. a kilometer, three times a week, three kilometers, an hour e.t.c

In exclamation before singular countable nouns e.g. such a brilliant boy!

such a dirty toilet!

Before titles; Mr., Mrs., Miss surname

e.g. a Miss Mutuku

a Mr. Ochieng

This means that the person referred to is a stranger to the speaker.

GENITIVE CASE IN NOUNS POSSESSIVE:

's form

'S is used with singular nouns and plural nouns NO ending in 's' e.g. Men's wear

Girl's wear

Teacher's key

A simple apostrophe (') is used with plural nouns ending in 'S'.

e.g. girl's room

Student's records

Classical names ending in 's' usually add only the apostrophe e.g. Achimedes' principle, Pythagoras' theorem

Names ending in s can take 's or the apostrophe alone

e.g. James' book or James's book

Jones' job or Jones's job

In compound nouns, the last word takes the 's e.g. My sister – in – law's car

Uses of the possessive

The possessive case is chiefly used of people, countries or animals.

e.g. Mutua's, Kenya's, the elephant's tusk e.t.c

It can also be used of planes, ships, trains, cars and other vehicles: though the 'of' construction is safer.

e.g. the train's wagon's – the wagons of the train (preferable)

Possessive is also used in time expressions. e.g. An hour's drive

Tomorrow's assignment

N.B: We can have 'a thirty minute's break' or a thirty minute break

The possessive form is also used in expressions of money + worth

e.g. ten shillings worth of candy

A few expressions such as 'a stone's throw', 'a journey's end' e.t.c will use the possessive.

Nouns in certain occupations can have the possessive without the second noun. e.g. the chemist's, the baker's, the butcher's e.t.c

C. OF + NOUN

Uses

When the possessor noun is followed by a phrase or a clause.

e.g. I saw the face of a man wearing glasses.

In inanimate 'possessors'

e.g. The roof of the church (NOT the church's roof)

N.B: It is possible to replace these expressions (i.e. of + noun) by having the 'noun possessor' coming before the 'noun- possessed'

e.g. The keys of the car – the car keys

The roof of the church – the church roof.

5. NOUN DERIVATION

In any language, words are formed by morphs.

In English, these morphs are either prefixes or suffixes.

For example, from the bare form of the verb 'act', we can derive the following words:

- React (v)

Reacted (past tense)

Reactive (adjective)

Reaction (noun)

Reacting (present participle) e.t.c

Some of the suffixes added to words to derive nouns include: - er,...ee,...ness,...ion,...ship,...ence e.t.c

We may derive nouns from:

(i) Verbs

Nouns

e.g. Worship

worshiper

Detain

detainee

Interview

interview/interviewer/interviewee

6. GENDER SENSITIVE WORDS

Gender refers to the specific roles or duties assigned to different sexes. These roles are culture based and they keep changing. Roles that were predominantly male dominated are now assigned to women.

It is important to develop a gender sensitive language.

Chairman	Chairlady	-	Chairperson
Headmaster	Headmistress	-	school head
History (his-story)	?
Manliness	?
Husbandry	?
Mankind	?
Man made e.t.c	?
There is need to develop gender sensitive language

7. FUNCTIONS OF NOUNS IN SENTENCES

Before we examine the functions of nouns in sentences, certain terms must be understood.

Noun phrase:

This is a group of words acting as a noun but without a finite verb (verb with tense).

Noun phrases usually consist of: - an article + adjective(s) + noun.

e.g. The ridiculous incident article adj. Noun

Noun clause:

This is a group of words consisting of a subject and a finite verb. The noun clause acts as a noun in a sentence.

NOUNS/NOUN PHRASES/NOUN CLAUSES AS SUBJECTS OF A SENTENCE

Subject:

This refers to what or whom the sentence refers to.

In sentences with transitive verbs, the subject is the doer of the action stated by the verb.

Nouns, noun phrases and noun clauses can act as subjects of sentence.

e.g. The boys (n) were called in.

The most improved students were rewarded.

S (noun phrase)

The students who came late, were sent away.

S (noun clause)

(ii). OBJECT

NOUNS/NOUN PHRASES/NOUN CLAUSES AS DIRECT OBJECTS

The direct object refers to the receiver of the action stated by the verb.

A noun, noun phrase and noun clause can act as a direct object in a sentence.

e.g. He kicked the ball.

D.O (noun)

They received the exercise books.

D.O (noun phrase)

He slapped a girl who sat behind the class.

D.O (noun clause)

NOUNS/NOUNPHRASES/NOUN CLAUSES AS INDIRECT OBJECT

The indirect object (I.O) receives the direct object

e.g. He gave the card to Juma.

I.O (n)

He gave the card to the brightest boy in class.

I.O (noun phrase)

They gave letters to all who had shouted.

Noun clause (I.O)

NOUN CLAUSES AS COMPLIMENTS

Look at the sentences below.

What they found were broken chairs.

n. phrase (C)

Mary is a bellicose student.

Noun phrase (C)

The underlined phrases compliment (describe, modify) the subject.

The direct object and indirect object can also be complimented by noun clauses.

Kioko gave it to Mary, the short brown girl.

Compliment of object

In brief, nouns, noun phrases and noun clauses may act as subjects, objects and compliments in sentences.

CHAPTER TWO: PRONOUNS.

1. CATEGORIES:

These are words which substitute nouns. Pronouns are useful if one wishes to avoid repetition when linking phrases, clauses or sentences.

Pronouns may be classified as personal, possessive, reflexive, interrogative and relative.

PERSONAL PRONOUNS

	Subject	Object
1 st person singular	I	Me
2 nd person singular	You	You
3 rd person singular	He/she/it	Him/her/it
1 st person plural	We	Us
2 nd person plural	You	You
3 rd person plural	They	Them

The first person refers to the person(s) speaking.

The second person refers to the person(s) being spoken to.

The third person refers to the person(s) referred to or the one spoken about.

(B) POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS

Persons	Possessive adjectives	Possessive pronouns
1 st person singular	My	Mine
2 nd person singular	Your	Yours
3 rd person singular	His/her/its	His/hers/its
1 st person plural	Our	Ours
2 nd person plural	Your	Yours
3 rd person plural	Their	Theirs

N.B We do not use the apostrophe for the possessive pronouns.

It's means 'it is'.

Its means 'belonging to it' or 'of it'

Examples:

That book is yours. Mine is in the library.

Theirs is a very serious court case.

This is my book. Yours is in the library.

Mine is a very serious court case.

C. REFLEXIVE PRONOUNS:

Reflexive pronouns are used when the action of the verb returns to the subject.

e.g. I hurt myself
S (s/o)

‘Myself’ is the ‘object’ of the sentence and it is actually the subject.

Below is a list of ‘reflexive pronouns’

Person	Singular	Plural
First person	Myself	Ourselves
Second person	Yourself	Yourselves
Third person	Himself/herself/itself	Themselves

The reflexive pronoun ‘oneself’ is indefinite.

As observed above,

Reflexive pronouns are used when the action of the verb returns to the subject.

e.g. I saw myself in the mirror

I thanked myself for the victory

They branded themselves rogues.

Mutua loved himself so much.

Reflexive pronouns are also used to emphasize the nouns or pronouns in the subject position.

e.g. The president himself opened parliament.

She supervised it herself.

D. INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS

These are pronouns used while asking questions.

Below is a list of interrogative pronouns.

	Subject	Object	Possessive
For persons } } For things	Who Which What Which	Who/whom Which What Which	Whose - - e.g. Who came here?

Which/what is available? E.t.c

Which is used for persons or things when the choice is restricted.

e.g. Which did you buy?

Who wrote the essay and ‘which’ (of the boys) wrote the essay’ are different.

In ‘who wrote the essay?’ the speaker may not even know that it was a boy. In the second, it is specified or restricted to a particular group.

E. DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS

These pronouns are used to indicate the position of a particular noun.

They include:

Singular	Plural	Meaning
This	These	Near (close) to the speaker
That	Those	Farther away from the speaker

When these words are immediately followed by nouns, they act as adjectives.

e.g. This book is mine, but this is yours

adj n pronoun

Those in uniform were ushered in to the class.

Pronoun

Those students in uniform...

Adjective

F. RELATIVE PRONOUNS

Relative pronouns are used to introduce clauses.

Defining relative pronouns introduce a clause which distinguishes the noun being described from the rest of its class hence they introduce adjectival clauses. e.g. The boys who sneaked from school were punished.

This sentence implies that only those boys who sneaked from school were punished. Those who did not sneak from school were not punished.

Non-defining relative clauses simply augment (or are in apposition to the noun being described.

e.g. The boys, who sneaked from school, were punished.

The second sentence implies that all the boys sneaked from school; hence they were all punished.

Below is a list of relative pronouns used in defining relative clauses.

	Subject	Object	Possessive
For persons	Who That	Who /whom That	Whose
For things	Which That	Which That	Where /of which

Examples of relative pronouns used in defining clauses

The boys who play soccer were rewarded

The dog that vomited has disappeared

Men who worship Satan will regret in future

The above sentences have all been used in the subject position.

The sentences below have relative pronouns introducing clauses in the object position.
He punished the boys who came late.
Mwikali dislikes boys who constantly ogle at her.

Below is a list of relative pronouns used in non- defining relative clauses.

	Subject	Object	Possessive
First persons	Who	Whom / whom	Whose
For things	Which	Which	Whose / of which

Examine the sentences below:

The doctor, who welcomed us, registered his appreciation .

The clause, ‘who welcomed us’, is in apposition. It simply adds more information that the doctor also welcomed them.

Compare:

The doctor, who welcomed us, registered his appreciation.

The doctor who welcomed us registered his appreciation.

In the second sentence (which has a defining clause) implies that only the doctor (there were other doctors) who welcomed us registered his appreciation. In the first sentence the relative clause is non- defining. It implies that there was only one doctor and he is also the one who welcomed us /them.

Distinguish the meanings in the following pairs of sentences

The girls, whose books were taken, are complaining.

The girls whose books were taken are complaining.

The students, who excelled in last year’s exams, were rewarded.

The students who excelled in last year’s exams were rewarded.

The man, whom I saw, was in a red jacket.

CHAPTER THREE: VERBS

DEFINITION AND CATEGORIES

Verbs are actions in sentences.

A verb denotes the action or state of being of the subject in a sentence.

e.g. She dashed into class (indicates action)

S verb (v)

Mary is unwell

S verb - (indicates state of being)

Verbs also carry the tense or the time when a particular action took place or is to take place.

e.g. She went home yesterday

She goes home this evening

Verbs also carry the perfective or the progressive aspect of the action.

e.g. She had eaten the food implies that the action came to completion before another action in the past happened. This verb is in the perfective aspect.

e.g. 2 She is writing an essay.

The verb in this sentence implies that the action of writing is in progress. The verb therefore carries the progressive aspect.

There are two main types of verbs:

Lexical and auxiliary verbs

LEXICAL VERBS

These are action words which occur independently and singly in clauses.

e.g. The boy kicked the ball

The verb 'kick' is independent and may not need another verb.

The boy kicked threw the ball. This is wrong because lexical verbs occur singly in clauses or sentences.

Verbs will always agree with the subject of the sentence in relation to number (i.e. singular or plural)

For example:

Juma goes to school

S. Subject V

The boy goes to school

S. Subject V

The boys go to school

Pl. subject V

A singular subject has a corresponding singular form of a verb.

A plural subject will have a corresponding plural of a verb.

Verbs will change for tense. e.g. I see him (simple present) I saw him (simple past)

Below are the different tenses in English and examples of how two verbs may change in the respective tenses.

Simple present tense

He eats rice for supper

He walks to school

Present continuous:

He is eating rice for supper

He is walking to school

Present perfect:

He has eaten rice for supper

He has walked to school

Present perfect continuous:

He has been eating rice for supper

He has been walking to school

Past simple:

He ate rice for supper

He walked to school

Past continuous

He was eating rice for supper

He was waking to school.

Past perfect:

He had eaten rice for supper

He had walked to school

Past perfect continuous:

He had been eating rice for supper

He had been walking to school

(i) Future Simple:

He will / shall eat rice for supper

He will walk to school

Future continuous:

He will be eating rice for supper

He will be walking to school

Future perfect:

He will have eaten rice for supper

He will have walked to school

Future perfect continuous:

He will have been eating rice for supper

He will have been walking to school

Before looking at the way all these tenses and time aspects are derived, let us first look at the other category of verbs: Auxiliary verbs.

(B) AUXILIARY VERBS

Auxiliary are also called helping verbs. They help carry the tense, the progressive or perceptive aspect and in the case of modals; the mood or mode of the verb. There are two types of auxiliary verbs:

Main auxiliary

Modal auxiliary

(a) Main Auxiliary:

There are three primary auxiliaries; to be, to have and to do

The different forms of these verbs are tabled below:

Infinitive	Present tense	Past tense	Past participle be	am, is, are	Was	been have	have, has	Had	had
do	do, does	Did	done

The three primary auxiliaries can be used as ordinary verbs.

e.g. He has a book.

He is lazy.

He did the job.

These three auxiliaries can also, unlike lexical verbs, occur in the same sentence. e.g. He has been doing the job

(to have) (to be) (to do) have

When it occurs independently in a sentence, it implies 'possesses'

e.g. She has a car means she possesses a car.

When used as an helping verb, it carries the perfective aspect

e.g. I have returned the book

Modal auxiliaries

These combine with infinitives to indicate permission, possibility, obligation, deduction e.t.c.

They include: -

Present	Past
Can	Could
May	Might

Must	Had to Ought
Shall	Should
will	Would

Unlike primary auxiliaries, a single clause cannot have more than one modal auxiliary. e.g. We must walk

We could must walk

We shall look at several uses of modal auxiliaries in other chapters.

VERB AND TENSE

The simple present tense

The Simple Present tense is used for:

Facts:

e.g. The sun rises from East.

Dog barks.

Repeated actions, customs and habits

People celebrate Christmas on 25th December.

Kenyans go for elections every five years.

Abilities

He balances on a rope.

He paints walls.

When asking questions in this tense, the auxiliary must reflect the number.

e.g. Does he walk to school ?(singular subject)

Do they walk to school? (plural subject)

B. Simple past tense

This tense is used when the action referred to happened in the past e.g. They walked to the police station yesterday.

Verbs ending in a consonant preceded by a single stressed vowel double the consonant in the past tense.

e.g. Hop – hopped

Stop – stopped

Fit – fitted

Most verbs that end in Y change the Y in to - ied e.g. Hurry – hurried

Bury – buried

Reply – replied

Worry – worried

In regular verbs, the past simple ends in -ed

e.g. Walk – walked

Talk – talked

Worship – worshiped

Wash – washed
Several verbs are irregular e.g. Write – wrote
See – saw Go
– went Throw – threw Cost - cost Hit - hit

Present continuous tense

This tense is used when we want to talk about an action which ‘is still going on’ e.g. I am writing an essay now.

It talks of a continuation or progressiveness.

Constructions in this tense comprise of an auxiliary verb in the simple present and a present participle (verb with –ing form).

They are walking home

(be) V + ing

To derive the present participle from the verb:

Most verbs ending in ‘e’ drop the ‘e’ and add –‘ing’ to the stem.

e.g. Come – coming

Wake – waking

Type – typing

A few verbs with long vowels or diphthongs retain the ‘e’ and add the -ing

e.g. Flee – fleeing

Dye – dying

Canoe – canoeing

Some verbs ending in –‘ie’ drop the –‘ie’ and replace it with ‘y’ before the –‘ing’ can be replaced.

e.g. Die – dying

Lie – lying

A verb which ends in a consonant that is preceded by a short vowel sound doubles that consonant before adding the –‘ing’ ending.

e.g. Hit – hitting

Slap – slapping

Sit – sitting

Map – mapping

Verbs with a long vowel or diphthong before the last consonant do not have the last consonant doubled.

e.g. Deal – dealing

Steal – stealing

Wail – wailing

D. THE PAST CONTINUOUS TENSE

This tense is formed by changing into past auxiliary verb 'be' + verb + ing.

She is watching a movie. (present continuous)

She was watching a movie. (past continuous)

The past continuous tense implies that the action which has already been done was happening progressively.

e.g. We are reciting a poem.

He was making cookies.

They were waiting for the teacher.

E. THE PRESENT PERFECT

This tense is formed by has / have + past participle

e.g. She has come.

They have sung.

The past participle often ends in -'ed'

e.g. washed, talked

However, several verbs are irregular.

e.g. Do – done

Write – written

Be – been

Beat – beaten

Bend – bent

The past participle forms do not always directly correspond to the simple past forms.

For example:

Infinitive

Be

Bet

Catch

Drink

Grow

Leave

Lie

Sew

Show

Write

Swear

Split

Past simple

was /were bet

caught

drank

lay sewed showed wrote swore split

Past participle

been bet

drunk

lain

sewn / sewed shown / showed written sworn

split

Most good dictionaries and textbooks provide lists of verbs in their past simple and past participle forms.

The present perfect implies that an action has just been completed. We can sense the effects of the action.

e.g. Who has banged the door (the noise is disturbing)

The bell has gone (students can be seen running)

F. PRESENT PERFECT CONTINUOUS

This tense is formed by has / have + been + verb in the present participle.

e.g. She has been singing

I have been reading A Man of the People.

This tense implies that the action has been happening progressively for its perfective completion.

G. PAST PERFECT

It is formed by had + past participle

e.g. They had eaten the food.

She had seen him.

We had finished the examination.

H. PAST PERFECT CONTINUOUS

It is formed by had + been + present participle.

e.g. She had been washing clothes.

They had been swimming.

The tense implies that before a particular action took place something was going on continually to completion.

e.g. She had been singing when we arrived

This means that when they arrived:

She had just stopped singing

She was singing continuously.

All the events took place in the past.

WAYS OF EXPRESSING FUTURE TIME

There are several forms of expressing the future.

Simple present + time aspect e.g.

They start school on Monday.

We go to the museum next Tuesday.

Present continuous + time aspect.

I am going to Nairobi next week

They are opening school next Monday.

The simple present is more impersonal than the present continuous form.

I go home tomorrow

I am going home tomorrow

The first sentence may imply that it is not part of my decision to go home, whereas the second one implies that I have actually decided.

The simple present form can also sound more formal than the continuous.

e.g. 'Learners sit for the exam next week' is more formal than 'Learners are sitting for exams next week'.

Will / shall + infinitive

Will + infinitive expresses intention at the moment of decision.

e.g. The bell has gone, I'll dash to class.

Be + going to form

e.g. I am going to buy a dictionary.

This form is used to express subject's intention to perform a certain future action.

This intention is always pre-meditated.

It means I have decided.

e.g. I am going to draw a timetable.

The future continuous

This is expressed by:

Will / shall + present participle

e.g. I will be singing.

Mutua will be running round the field.

(g). Future Perfect

It is expressed by:

Will + have + past participle

e.g. I will have done my exams by 2010

They will have laid the trap.

(h). Future perfect continuous.

It is expressed by:

Will / shall + have + been + present participle

e.g. I will have been doing the paper.

They shall have been singing.

TRANSITIVE AND INTRANSITIVE VERBS

All verbs that take an object after them are called transitive verbs.

e.g. James prepared buns

v.t

Intransitive verbs do not accept an object after them.

Most of the intransitive verbs are followed by adverbs, adjectives or descriptive phrases.

e.g. We arrived in the morning.

v.i

He yawned twice

v.i

He shouted

v.i

Some verbs can be used both transitively and intransitively.

e.g. I fought him (transitively)

v.t

I fought courageously (intransitively)

v.i

The good dictionaries will indicate whether a verb is used transitively or not.

QUESTION TAGS

A question tag is a phrase added at the end of a statement to make the statement a question. Question tags may also be defined as short additions to sentences asking for agreement or confirmation.

Rules of forming question tags:

After negative statements, we use the ordinary interrogative.

e.g. You didn't see him, did you?
He wasn't there, was he?

After affirmative (positive) statements, we use the negative the negative interrogative.

Peter saw you, didn't he?
Mary was there, wasn't she?

Neither, no (adj) none, no one, nobody, nothing, scarcely, barely, hardly, hardly ever and seldom are treated as negative hence the statements containing them are followed by an ordinary interrogative tag.

e.g. He hardly ever goes to school, does he?
No one saw him, did they?
Nothing was said, was it?
No salt is allowed, is it?

When the subjects of the sentence is anyone, anybody, no one, nobody, none and neither, we use the pronoun they as subject of the tag.

e.g. Neither of them complained, did they?
Any one is welcome, are they?
No one would object, would they?

If the statement does not have any auxiliary verb, we use 'do' as the auxiliary verb.

e.g. Edward lives here, doesn't he?
She baked cakes, didn't she?
No one came in time, did they?

In statements with everybody, everyone, somebody and someone, we use they as the subject of the tag.

e.g. Everyone was excited, weren't they?
Someone made away with my book, didn't they?
Somebody had seen him, hadn't they?

NOTE:

When question tags are used, the speaker doesn't normally need information but merely expects agreement.

Tags are therefore usually said with a falling intonation as in statements.

Sometimes however, the speaker does want information. He is not quite sure that the statement (he has made) is true and wants to be reassured. In this case, the question tag is said with a rising tone (as in ordinary interrogatives) and the important word in the first sentence is stressed.

THE PARTICIPLES

A. The present participle

It is formed by the bare form of the verb (infinitive) + ing.

The present participle has several uses:

To form continuous tenses

e.g. He is singing.

As adjectives. e.g.

Leaking pipes

Running water

Boiling pot e.t.c

After have + object

e.g. We have many people registering for this course.

Object

We have few students coming late.

It can sometimes replace a relative pronoun + verb e.g.

A line that cuts across two points

A line cutting across two points

A map that shows Lake Victoria

A map showing Lake Victoria

To introduce statements in indirect speech

e.g. He told me to avoid the route, reminding me that several people had been recently mugged.

After verbs of sensation (i.e. see, hear, feel, smell, listen to and watch).

e.g. I see him crouching under the table.

I heard them singing a hymn.

I listened to him shouting to the girl.

After catch / find / leave + object.

e.g. I caught him stealing from the school

farm I left her sitting on a rock.

He found him reading in the library.

After go / come / spend / waste / be busy

e.g. They came shouting

They are going swimming

Jane was busy reading

He spend ten thousand shillings furnishing the room.

N.B

The present participle after verbs of sensation may express both complete and incomplete actions.

I saw him digging the grave.

This sentence may imply that the action is still going on.

It may also mean that he was found doing that (digging the grave) and the action is complete. If these verbs are followed by a bare infinitive, we may imply that the action is complete.

e.g. I saw him dig the grave.

Compare the meaning in the two pairs of sentences below.

Maria was seen running round the field

Maria was seen run round the field.

I watched the actors performing the play.

I watched the actors perform the play.

Catch / find + object + present participle

The action expressed by the participle is one that displeases the subject.

e.g. I caught him jumping over the fence.

She was found writing a love letter.

Leave

This verb can be used with a participle.

e.g. I left him shouting in the dormitory.

A present participle replacing a main clause

(i) When two actions by the same subject occur simultaneously, it is usually possible to express one of them by a present participle.

The participle can be before or after the finite verb.

e.g. He ran away. He shouted as he ran - He ran away shouting.

(ii) When one action is immediately followed by another of the same subject, the first action can often be expressed by a present participle.

The participle must be placed first.

e.g. He opened the door and threw the keys inside.

Opening the door, he threw the keys inside.

When the second action forms part of the first or is as a result of it, we can express the second action by a present participle.

e.g. She went out, banging the door.

The police fired, shooting a suspect.

Present participle replacing a subordinate clause

The present participle can replace as / since / because + subject + verb It can help to explain the action which follows.

e.g. Knowing that the examinations would be tough he studied hard.

Since he knew...

Or because / as he knew ...

These constructions are chiefly found in written English.

B. The perfect participle

(i) It is formed by having + past participle.

It can be used in place of present participle in sentences where the action is immediately followed by another with the same object.

Bolting one tyre firmly in its place, he threw the other in the back cabin. – Having bolted one tyre firmly in its place, he threw the other in the back cabin.

The perfect participle is necessary where there is an interval of time between two actions.

e.g. Having failed twice, he didn't want to try again.

It is also used when the first action covered a period of time.

e.g. Having been a prefect for three years, he found his stay in school as a common student difficult.

(iv) The perfect participle may be used where the present participle might lead to ambiguity.

Eating his lunch, he went out of the hall.

(This statement has two meanings)

It can be disambiguated by using the perfect participle; having eaten his lunch, he went out of the hall.

C. Past participle (passive)

The past participle of regular verbs is formed by adding 'ed' or 'd' to the infinitive.

These constructions are in the passive.

The passed participle can be used;

As an adjective

e.g. Broken glass

Written report

Torn dress e.t.c

To form the perfect tenses / infinitives / the passive voice and participles.

e.g. He has seen

It was broken

To replace a subject + passive verb.

e.g. She enters . She's accompanied by her sister.

She enters accompanied by her sister.

The roof had been worn out over the years and was no longer useful.

- Worn out over the years, the roof was no longer useful.

The perfect passive

It is formed by having been + past participle.

It is used when it is necessary to emphasize that the action expressed by the participle happened before the action expressed by the next verb.

e.g. Having been informed about him, I gave him no money.

N.B

A participle is believed to belong to the noun or pronoun which precedes it.

e.g. James, troubled by what he had seen, went to the police station

If there is no noun / pronoun in this position, the participle is considered to belong to the subject of the following main verb.

e.g. Troubled by what he had seen, James went to the police station.

If this principle is disregarded, confusion results.

e.g. Waiting for a taxi at the kerb, a mouse passed by.

This may imply that the mouse was waiting for the bus.

A participle linked in this way to the wrong noun or pronoun is said to be misrelated. The above sentence should be re-written;

I was waiting for a taxi at the kerb when a mouse passed by.

PHRASAL VERBS

These are formed by verb + preposition or verb + adverb.

e.g. Look after – means to take care of.

Note that phrasal verbs are considered as independent and they have quite different meanings from the verbs which form them.

Phrasal verbs, like all other verbs will change for tense and number.

e.g. He gave in. (Simple past)

He gives in (Simple present)

He has given in (present perfect) e.t.c.

Like lexical verbs, phrasal verbs can be used transitively or intransitively.

e.g. They have to look after the babies

v.t

They took off when the police arrived.

v.i

Below is a list of phrasal verbs.

Good dictionaries will provide the phrasal verbs formed from verbs.

Answer back (v.i)

Close up (v.i) come nearer together (of people in a line)

Do away with (v.t) abolish

Do up (v.t) redecorate

Do without (v.t) manage in the absence of a person or thing.

Enter for (v.t) become a competitor / candidate (e.g. for a contest. Examination)

Fade away (v.i) disappear, become gradually fainter (usually of sounds)

Grow out of (v.t) – abandon, on becoming older

Grow up intr) become an adult

Hang about / around (vt / vi) loiter or wait (near)
Hang back (v.i) show unwillingness to act
Hang on to (vt) retain, keep in one's possession.
Join up (v.i) enlist (e.g. in the army)
Knock off (vt, v.i) stop work for the day (informal)
Knock out (v.t) hit someone so hard that he falls unconscious.
Look for (v.t) search for or seek.
Miss out (v.t) leave out
Order (somebody) about – give a lot of orders.
Point out (v.t) indicate, show
Rub out (v.t) erase pencil or ink marks.
Rub up (v.t) revise one's knowledge of subject.
Sell off (v.t) sell cheaply (what is left as stock)
Sell out (v.i) sell all that you have of a certain type of article.

Think over (v.t) – consider

Wipe out (v.t) destroy completely.

IDIOMATIC EXPRESSIONS:

An idiomatic is a phrase or clause whose meaning like that of the phrasal verb is different from the words that constitute it. Therefore one has to know the meaning of the idiom.

The more one learns the use of idioms in conversation, the more he becomes proficient in their usage.

Idioms can be used as adjectives nouns and as verbs.

Below are a few idioms used as verbs.

Lay/put ones cards on the table – to be honest and open about one's resources and intentions.

e.g. The warring factions can only reach a consensus if they put their cards on the table.

Give somebody his cards – dismiss somebody.

The corrupt officials were given cards by the new government.

To be at sixes and sevens – to be confused.

I have a lot of work and I am at all sixes and sevens about what to do first.

Skin somebody alive (said as a threat) – punish somebody severely.

Be on the look out for somebody/ something – Be somebody's concern or responsibility.

Throw/flip/sling mud at somebody – try to damage somebody's reputation by slander, libel e.t.c

Lay down office - resign a position of authority.

Come to harm (usually negative) be injured physically, mentally or morally.

e.g. I'll escort her to the bus station to ensure that she comes to no harm.

Earn /turn an honest penny – earn money by working hard and fairly

Be in the red / get somebody in to the red – Have more liabilities than assets.

Get out of the red – get out of debt.

Careful use of idioms is important. Some of them are used in formal contexts and others are used informally. A good dictionary indicates the usage of common idioms in the English language.

Using idioms wrongly is not only a sign of ignorance but it is also irritating.

CHAPTER 4 : ADJECTIVES

1. DEFINITION AND CLASSIFICATION:

Adjectives are words which describe or modify nouns or pronouns.

There are six main kinds of adjectives: -

Demonstrative – This, that, these, those.

Distributive – Each, every, either neither

Quantitative – Little/a little, few, a few, some, many, much, six e.t.c

Interrogative – Which, what, whose Possessive – My, your, his, her, its our, your, their

Qualitative e.g. clever, dry, fat good, heavy e.t.c

We shall closely look at each of these when examining the functions of adjectives.

POSITIONS OF ADJECTIVES:

The normal position of an adjective is directly before the noun it modifies.

e.g. The dirty worn out book was thrown out.

However, for stylistic reasons, adjectives may come after the noun they modify e.g. The book, dirty and worn out was thrown out.

When an adjective comes before the subject of the sentence (or immediately after the subject and before the verb) we say it is attributive. An attributive adjective comes at the subject position.

A predicative adjective is separated from the word it modifies by a verb.

e.g. The girl is fast and meticulous.

Adj adj

Predicative adjectives occur at the predicate position.

As observed in chapter one nouns, some words may be used as both adjectives and pronouns.

These include all the relative pronouns (i.e. who, that, whose, those, which), all, another, any, both, each, either, many, more neither, one, other, several, some, these, this, those, what, e.t.c.

e.g. Which pen do you want?

Adj.

Which do you want

Pronoun.

I want more food

Adj.

I want more

Pronoun

3. PARTICIPLES USED AS ADJECTIVES

Both present participle (verb + ing) and past participles (verb + ed) can be used as adjectives.

e.g. Amusing incident

Tiring exercise

When they are used, they mean ‘having this effect’

Past participle adjectives (e.g. amused audience, tired students e.t.c.) are passive and means 'affected in this way'

Agreement of adjectives:

Adjectives in English have the same form for singular and plural; masculine and feminine.

e.g. A good boy good boys

A good girl good girls

The only exceptions are demonstrative adjectives, this and that which take these and those in plural nouns.

COMPARISON IN ADJECTIVES

Adjectives in English have three degree of comparison:

Positive	Comparative	Superlative
Dark	darker	darkest
Short	shorter	shortest
Good	better	best
Beautiful	more beautiful	most beautiful

One-syllable adjectives form their comparative and superlative by adding er and est to the positive form.

e.g. Dark darker darkest

One –syllable adjectives ending in 'e' add 'r' and st to the comparative and superlative respectively. E.g. brave – braver – bravest.

Adjectives of three or more syllables put more and most before positive for comparative and superlative respectively.

e.g. Interested more interested most interested Cunning more cunning most cunning

Adjectives of two syllables follow one or other of the above rules.

Those ending in –ful or –re usually take more or most.

e.g. Useful more useful most useful Obscure more obscure most obscure

Those ending in er, y, or ly usually add er or est.

e.g. Clever cleverer cleverest Pretty prettier prettiest

Some adjectives have irregular comparisons.

e.g. Bad worse worst
Good better best
Many more most Little less least Old elder eldest older oldest

N.B elder/eldest implies seniority rather than age.

Elder is not used with than.

Positive

With the positive form, we use as... as in the affirmative and not as / not so... as in the negative.

- e.g. He was as gracious as Mother Teresa Coffee is not as expensive as tea
Coffee is not so expensive as tea.

Comparative

With comparative form, we use than.

- e.g. Kioko is faster than Kiprono (affirmative)
Kioko is not faster than Kiprono (negative)

Superlatives

For both affirmative and negative constructions, the... in/of is used.

- e.g. Kioko is the fastest runner in the team (affirmative)
Kioko is not the fastest runner in the team (negative)
Jumba is the most disgusting character in the play.
Or of all the characters, Jumba is the most disgusting.

Parallel increase is expressed by the + comparative...the + comparative.

- e.g. The faster he ran, the more tired he become.
The higher you go, the cooler it becomes.
The shorter a van is, the more stable it is.

Gradual increase or decrease is expressed by two comparatives expressed by and.

- e.g. He became more and more embarrassed.
The audience became less and less amused
The weather was getting hotter and hotter.

FUNCTIONS OF ADJECTIVES.

Demonstrative adjectives

These adjectives indicate the position of a particular noun in relation to the speaker.

These are the only adjectives which change for number.

SINGULAR	PLURAL	POSITION
This	These	Very close to the speaker
That	Those	Noun further away from speaker or Close to the listener.

These adjectives can also be used as pronouns if the adjective that they describe is omitted. e.g. This car is hers (adjective)

This is hers (pronoun)

Demonstrative adjectives usually come before the nouns that they modify.

These students were all late.

Adj (n)

Distributive adjectives

These include each, every, either, neither e.t.c

They are used to indicate the 'distribution' of the specific nouns.

e.g. Every boy came – implies that all boys came.

Each boy got a fruit – this implies that there were many fruits and all the boys got at least a fruit.

Quantitative adjectives.

These adjectives specify quantities or amounts of a particular noun or nouns.

They include: -

little/ a little, few/ a few/ some, many, any, much, one, three, no. e.t.c

(i) A Little / Little:

These are used for uncountable nouns.

A little implies enough

e.g. There is a little tea in the kettle – implies that one may take it.

I had a little sugar, so I did not buy more.

Little:

It implies 'hardly any'

e.g. There is little sugar, so I'll buy some at the shop.

A few / few:

These two adjectives are used for countable nouns.

A few implies several or enough.

e.g. There were few good books in the library so I did not go there.

N.B little and a little can also be used as adverbs. E.g. It rained a little last week.

We shall examine adverbs in the next unit.

Some, any, much, many:

Some

This adjective is used in affirmative sentences.

e.g. There is some water in the jug.

There are some girls in the dormitory.

Some is used for both countable and uncountable nouns.

e.g. Put some soil in the bag (uncountable)

Call some boys from the hostel. (countable)

It is used in questions expecting the answers 'yes' e.g.

Would you like some coffee?

Did you say there are some girls in the dormitory?

It is also used to mean 'not all'

e.g. Some girls bought the school uniform

(i.e. Not all girls bought the school uniform)

Any

(i) It is used in negative sentences

e.g. There aren't any girls in the hostel

It is used for both countable and uncountable nouns.

e.g. Don't carry any books out of the library.

It is used in conditional clauses.

e.g. If there had been any student in the hostel, he would have been harmed.

It is used to mean 'no matter which'

You can send any student to the canteen

Please bring any book from the library.

N.B The adjective 'no' does not precede 'any' in statement as - there are no any boys in the hostel.

(v) In spoken language, the form -nt is normal after 'be' and 'have' forms.

e.g. There aren't any keys in the room.

They haven't any milk at the dairy.

Much and many

Much is used before uncountable nouns and many before countable nouns.

Both these words mean 'a lot of'

e.g. I gave him much water

I gave him a lot of water.

There are many books in class – there are a lot of books in class.

These words can also be used with the words 'too' and 'so' to express emphasis.

e.g. I drunk too much water

I have so much home work

She has too many books

Much and many can also be used with 'as' for positive degree in adjectives.

e.g. She has as much work as John.

Enough:

The word enough can be followed by a clause indicating possibility.

e.g. He is big enough to ride a bicycle.

If enough is preceded by a negative verb, then the following idea is negative.

e.g. He isn't big enough to drive

Jane isn't big enough to get married.

Enough usually follows the adjective or adverb that it modifies.

When it comes before the noun, it means 'satisfactory number; right amount or quantity.'

e.g. There are enough books in the library.

5. TYPICAL ENDINGS OF ADJECTIVES:

Like nouns, adjectives have morphs that are characteristics of them. Some suffixes which are used to derive adjectives from other parts of speech include

- ful, - les, - ous, - ing, - ly, - sy, - cal

Below is a list of words and their corresponding adjective derivatives

Noun –

Man

Adjective

manly

Beauty	beautiful
Ambition	ambitions
State	stately
Topic	topical

Verb	Adjective
Amaze	amazing
Use	useful
Dare	daring
Ease	easy

Most adjectives are lexical items; they occur in their bare form and are therefore not derived from other words.

e.g. Humid

Trivial

Humble e.t.c

To have mastery of the good use of adjectives the learners will be required to practice English, read widely and listen keenly to correct use of adjectives.

CHAPTER FIVE: ADVERBS.

DEFINITION AND CATEGORIES OF ADVERBS

Adverbs describe the action (of the verb).

There are several kinds of adverbs.

Adverbs of manner:

These explain how a particular action took place.

e.g. He quickly ran to class.

The ball slowly rolled from the roof. E.t.c

Adverbs of place

These adverbs give information about where a particular action took place. They sat here

They went inside

He was thrown up e.t.c.

Adverbs of time

These give information about time that a particular action took place. They answer the question when?

e.g. I have seen him now.

He soon found out the truth.

Adverbs of frequency

These adverbs explain 'how often' a particular action took place.

They include such adverbs as always, often, seldom, never, ever e.t.c

e.g. She seldom goes to hospital

Jane always shouts in class.

Adverbs of degree

These adverbs explain the extend of a particular action.

Adverbs of degree include fairly, rather, too e.t.c

e.g. I was too exhausted to go to class.

COMPARATIVE AND SUPERLATIVE FORMS OF ADVERBS

(a) Adverbs like adjectives have comparative and superlative forms.

The rules of forming these are more or less the same as those of adjectives.

Positive	Comparative	Superlative
Hard	harder	hardest
Quickly	more quickly	most quickly
Well	better	best
Badly	worse	worst
Little	less	least
Much	more	most

Constructions with comparisons:

With positive form, we use as... as with an affirmative verb and as/so... as with a negative.

e.g. He ran as fast as a deer.

He doesn't sing so well as you do.

With comparative form we use than. e.g. He washes more quickly than I do.

She arrived earlier than mi expected.

The comparative ...the + comparative is also possible.

e.g. The faster you run, the sooner you'll get there.

With superlatives we use of + noun or of + all. He went the farthest of the scouts or He went the farthest of all.

Positions and functions of adverbs

Adverbs of manner come after the verb.

e.g. She shouted angrily

He withdrew the statement reluctantly.

When we have verb + preposition + object

The adverb can be either before the preposition or after the object.

e.g. He looked at me suspiciously or

He suspiciously looked at me.

If the object is short, we have verb + object + adverb but if the object is long (comprising of many words) we usually put the adverbs before the verb.

e.g. She carefully picked all the bits of broken glass.

He angrily denied that he had sneaked away from school.

Adverbs concerned with character, intelligence e.t.c when placed before a verb indicate that the action was ____ (that particular character)

e.g. They foolishly stormed into the police station.

We could say, it was foolish of them to storm into the police station.

Adverbs of time are usually placed at the beginning or at the end of the clause.(i.e. In the front position or at the end position).

e.g. Then we walked home – we walked home then.

Hardly ever, never and rarely.

These adverbs can also be put at the beginning of a sentence, but inversion of the following verb becomes necessary.

e.g. Never did they find the lost money

Never + affirmative

Can replace the ordinary interrogative.

He does not eat meat

He never eats meat

Never + interrogative can be used to express surprise. e.g. Have they never seen a computer
Has she never been to Nairobi?

Ever means 'at any time' and is chiefly used in the interrogative. e.g. Has she ever been to Nairobi?

POSITIONS (ORDER) OF ADVERBS IN A SENTENCE

Expressions of manner usually come before expressions of place.

e.g. He lazily went into the room.

(Manner) (Place)

He'd stay happily anywhere

(Manner) (Place)

The adverbs away, back, down, forward, home, in, off, on, out, round and up usually precede (come before) adverbs of manner.

e.g. She went away disappeared

(Place) (Manner)

They looked back anxiously.

Time expressions can follow expressions of manner and place.

e.g. They lived here happily for six years

E. TYPICAL ENDINGS OF ADVERBS

CHAPTER SIX: PREPOSITIONS

DEFINITION

Prepositions are words or short phrases placed before nouns or pronouns. Prepositions convey a meaning of position, direction or time.

We have simple prepositions (which consist of one word) and complex prepositions (which comprise of two or more words).

POSITIONS OF PREPOSITIONS

Before examining a few of these prepositions. Let us first see the position of prepositions.

Prepositions normally precede nouns or pronouns. e.g. It is under the table

He had in the house

She stood beside her mother

In some constructions, it is possible to move the preposition to the end of the sentence.

e.g. In questions beginning with a preposition + whom/which/what/whose/where.

To whom were you talking? – who were you talking to?

In relative clauses, a preposition placed before whom/which can be moved to the end of the clause. The relative pronoun is then omitted.

e.g. The people with whom I was travelling screamed.

The people I was travelling with screamed.

SIMPLE PREPOSITIONS

(A) Prepositions of time

at e.g. at dawn

at six

at midnight

at sixteen

at is used at an exact point in time.

e.g. The bell rang at ten o'clock everyday.

Exception: (at Christmas, at Easter)

'At' may be used to imply 'the period' not the day only.

e.g. My father comes at Christmas every year (i.e. during Christmas season)

Compare: my father comes on Christmas.

on e.g. on Monday

on 4th June

on Christmas

This preposition does not specify the exact time.

e.g. He came on Monday at noon

By

By three o'clock

By midnight

By 27th august e.t.c

This preposition implies 'before' the time mentioned.

On time/in time

On time implies the time arranged. Not earlier, not later.

In time means 'not late' or 'in good time'.

e.g. She came on time (at the exact hour arranged)

She came in time (in good time)

From

Usually used to indicate time

From is normally used with 'to' or 'till /until'.

e.g. Most people work from dawn to dusk this means during that span of time.

Since

This also means 'from that time to the time referred to.'

e.g. He left in June. I haven't seen him since then.

For

It is used for a 'period of time'

e.g. I was jobless for three years.

During and for

These two prepositions may be used to indicate 'known periods of time or seasons.'

e.g. I will be at home for Easter.

She will come during Christmas

Till / until

We can use from ...to or from ...till / until.

e.g. I waited for her from six until eight in the evening.

I waited for her from six to eight in the evening.

If we have from now, we use till / until and not 'to' e.g. Lets start from now and work till dark.

Prepositions of travel and movement from....to

We travel from our starting place to our destination.

e.g. We moved from Nairobi to Thika.

Arrive at / in

We arrive in a town or country.

We arrive at or in a village.

We arrive at any other destination.

Get to / reach

Get to can be used with any destination. And so can reach e.g. I want to get to Nairobi by noon.

Prepositions of transport. By/on/get in/into/onto/off/out of

We can travel by bus / car but in Jane's car.

We can also travel by a certain route (via is more usual) e.g. I went via Thika – Nairobi highway.

We can walk or go on foot or on horse back

We get in / into a private vehicle.

We go on board a plane, ship e.t.c

We get on / on to a horse / camel / bicycle.

at in, into, on, onto

At

To express place

We can be at home, at work, at the office, at school, at university.

In

We can be in a country, in a town, in a village, in street, in a room, in a forest, in a field, in a desert –or any place which has boundaries or which is enclosed.

We can be in a building (meaning inside)

We could be at a place (e.g. co-operative house) meaning inside or in the grounds or just out side.

In / into

In – indicates position.

Into – indicates movement or entrance. e.g. They climbed into the truck They were in the truck.

On / onto

On is used for both position and movement.

e.g. His name was on the board (position)

The raindrops fell on the roofs.

Onto – It is chiefly used for people and animals when there is a movement involving change.

We went onto the next stage.

COMPLEX PREPOSITIONS.

Certain preposition will only collocate or combine with certain words.

We have already examined the way several verbs combine with prepositions to form phrasal verbs.

Below are other possible combinations.

Noun + for

A reason for e.g. No one knows the reason for his dismissal

Noun + of

A cause of / an advantage of e.g. One advantage of boarding schools is that

A map of (e.g. a map of East Africa)

Noun + in

An increase in

A fall in (e.g. A fall in coffee prices)

Noun + to

A damage to

A solution to

An attitude to (or towards)

e.g. He has a negative attitude to English.

Noun + with

A connection with

A relationship with

e.g. He has a good relationship with his parents.

Adjective + of

Kind of

Nice of

e.g. It was kind of you to pay my college fees.

Adjective + about / with Angry with / angry about

Excited about

Worried about

Upset about e.t.c.

Adjective + at/by/with

Surprised at /by (e.g. bad news)

Impressed with /by

Adjective + about /for

Sorry about

e.g. She was sorry about the printing error

Adjective + of

Afraid of Frightened of

Terrified of Aware / conscious of Full of
Short of, typical of, tired of, sure of e.t.c.

(1) Adjective + at

Good at, bad at, (e.g. chemistry), hopeless at.

Adjective + to e.g. similar to, married to, engaged to e.t.c

Other possible combinations of adjectives + prepositions are: - Different from, interested in, keen on, dependent on, independent of, crowded with, famous for, responsible for.

DISTNGUISHING PREPOSITIONS FROM CONNECTORS AND ADVERB PARTICLES

Depending on the usage, certain words which are used as prepositions are also used as Connectors or adverbs.

e.g. I saw him before going to class – I saw him and went to class.
(Conjunction)

The usage of the word before here is different from,` He stood before everybody` which is an adverb answering the question when?

He sat before me (in front of me).Before is used as a preposition (it is asking where – in relation to the subject).

Since:

Since can be used as an adverb.

It can also be used as a conjunction

I am not going since there isn't any food remaining.

(Conjunction – to mean because)

Since you are unwell, you will be required to stay home. (Adverb of reason)

In conclusion, it is important to learn the correct use of prepositions by reading, speaking, listening and writing.

CHAPTER SEVEN: CONJUNCTIONS

Coordinating conjunctions and their functions

Conjunctions are words which are used to link clauses or sentences.

Below is a summary the common coordinating conjunctions in English and their functions.

Conjunctions	Function To indicate addition
And
Not only... but also
Also
Neither... nor
...too
As well

e.g. She went to the bar. She took beer.

Not only did she go to the bar, but she also took beer

She went to the bar and took beer.

Jane likes football. Judith likes football

Jane likes football; Judith as well

Conjunction	Function To indicate choice or either...or neither...nor

(d)

Conjunction	Function
For	To indicate cause
So (that)	Effect or because	result as

Other co-ordinating conjunctions include: Beside, however, nevertheless, so, therefore, notwithstanding and still.

Subordinating conjunctions introduce subordinate adverb or noun clauses.

For instance, conditional clauses are introduced by subordinate conjunctions.

They include:

Even if, whether...or, but for, otherwise, unless e.t.c

e.g. You must sit for the exams even if you've not revised for them.

You must go to church unless you are unwell.

I would have passed my exams but for the bout of malaria.

UNIT 7: CONJUNCTIONS

EXERCISE 7. A

Use the most appropriate conjunctions in the sentences below.

He is small _____ strong.

She can _____ read nor write.

Not only girls _____ also boys were involved.

Our bags were heavy, _____ we took a taxi.

EXERCISE 7.B

Re-write the following sentences according to the instructions given.

_____ (Beside /Besides) washing, she cooks for the family.

(Choose the correct alternative)

I couldn't improve _____ hard I tried. (Use an appropriate conjunction)

Inspite of the poor testimonials, he got the job. (Begin: Despite.....)

We ate the food, it had a horrible taste. (Combine into one sentence using 'despite')

Although it was dangerous, we walked on. (Re-write using 'inspite of)

Though she is inexperienced, she works very well. (Begin: Despite)

She did it for she was angry. (Correct the sentence)

(a) Mutua hasn't eaten the fruits.

John hasn't eaten the fruits.

(Combine into one sentence without using 'and')

Either Kioko or Oduor have eaten the food. (Re-write the sentence correctly)

She is arrogant. She is also lazy. (Begin: Not only.....)

CHAPTER EIGHT

PHRASES.

The term phrase refers to a meaningful segment of words which is larger than a word and smaller than a clause.

TYPES OF PHRASES:

Phrases are classified according to their functions within a sentence.

We have adverbial phrases, adjectival phrases, noun phrases and prepositional phrases.

Adverbial phrases

Like adverbs, we have adverbial phrases of manner, contrast, condition, purpose, reason, degree and result.

Below are two examples.

He kept the cup in the cupboard.

‘In the cupboard’ is an adverbial phrase of place.

She woke up at 8. O’clock.

Adverbial phrase of time

He saw her running very fast

(Adv. Manner)

Prepositional phrases

These phrases play the role of prepositions. We have already examined various examples of these under complex prepositions e.g He is good at Chemistry.

She is responsible for the girls’ dormitory.

Noun phrases and adjectival phrases

These consist of a group of words that function as nouns.

They may consist of an article and one or several adjectives and the noun that the preceding words modify.

e.g. The short young man came to class

Adjective phrase noun

Noun phrase

A brilliantly lit lamp was in the house

noun

Adjectival phrase

Noun phrase

Functions of noun phrases:

As subject

e.g. The shortest girl in the class ran out

As object

He gave the books to a boy in a blue trouser
O

They saw the wounded stray dog.
O

AS COMPLIMENT

e.g. That is the girl with a tattoo on her chest.

Mutua is a hard working boy.

SENTENCES AND CLAUSES.

DEFINITIONS

The term sentence can be defined as a meaningful segment bigger than a phrase and smaller than a paragraph.

A sentence must comprise of at least one clause.

A sentence may consist of two main parts: the subject part and the predicate.

e.g. The boy washed the dishes
Subject predicate

In this sentence, the predicate consists of the verb and the object.

The subject is usually the doer of the action stated by the verb. In the above sentence 'The boy' is the subject.

TYPES OF SENTENCES

Sentences may be classified as:

- Imperatives
- Interrogatives
- Exclamatory
- Declarative/affirmative and
- Negative

(a) IMPERATIVES:

Most commands, requests, invitations and suggestions are expressed by the imperatives.

Commands

The second person imperatives has the same form as the bare infinitive.

e.g. (you) hurry !

Wait!, run ! e.t.c.

The person addressed is often not mentioned but can be expressed by a noun at the end of the phrase.

e.g. Shut up! Kioko.

‘do’ can be placed before the affirmative imperative.

e.g. Do shut up – shut up!

Do be quick – be quick!

The first person imperative is expressed by let us (lets) + bare infinitive e.g. Let’s go home.

The third person imperative is expressed by let him/her/it/them + bare infinitive.

e.g. Let him shut up.

Let him go home (i.e. He is to go home/ he must go home)

N.B The negative imperative is not in common usage (e.g. Let him not go home) Instead we use must not, is/are not to.

e.g. He must not go home.

Commands are expressed by subject + shall.

This is often in official language and written English.

e.g. A student shall be required to speak in English whilst in school.

Subject + will

e.g. She will arrive at noon. (The person giving this type of order or command is sure that it will be obeyed)

Commands are often expressed as obligations by ‘must’

e.g. You must not smoke cigarettes within the school compound.

Instructions or orders can be expressed by be + infinitive.

e.g. You are to come to school on Monday.

Prohibitions may be expressed in written instructions by may not.

e.g. You may not keep food in the dormitory.

REQUESTS

These can be expressed with can / could / may / might / might I / we + have + noun / Pronoun.

Can:

It is informal.

e.g. Can I play outside?” said the boy.

Could I / we

This is the most generally used form. e.g. could I have a cup of tea?

May/might:

These modal auxiliaries are more informal than could.
They are possible with both spoken and written English e.g. May I have an exercise book? Might I have a copy of the letter?

Can/could/may/might I /met + verb.

e.g. Could I speak to Mr. Ouko please Modal subject V

Could you:

This is a very common request form.
e.g. could you please close the door.

Couldn't.

This is used when the speaker hopes for a more favourable answer than has just been indicated.
e.g. Couldn't you bring me four litres of milk?

Will / would you.

'Would you, please' has the same meaning as 'could you'
'Will you' is more authoritative and therefore less polite. E.g. will you sit down?

Would you mind + gerund.

e.g. would you mind washing my car?
Or would you mind buying a cup of tea?

You might.

This can express a very casual request.
e.g. You might throw these in the bin for me.

INVITATIONS

These can be expressed in the following ways:

Will you have / would you like + noun

e.g. Will you have coffee?

Would you like coffee?

Will / would / could you? /would you like?

e.g. Could you have lunch with me?

Would you like to have lunch with me?

When the speaker doesn't really expect his offer / invitation to be accepted, he can say,

You wouldn't like to have lunch with me, would you?

ADVICE FORMS Must, ought to, should: These can be used for advice.

e.g. The weather is cold. You should / must / ought to wear a woolen sweater.

You had better + bare infinitive

e.g. You had better wear school uniform.

You had better be in a woolen sweater.

If I were you

If I were you I'd wear a woolen sweater.

Why don't

e.g. Why don't you trim your hair – I suggest (advice you to) that you trim your hair.

Why don't you wear a woolen sweater.

Its time you + past tense

e.g. Its time you wore a woolen sweater.

Its time you trimmed you hair.

EXPRESSION SUGGESTIONS

Lets or shall I / we + infinitive.

e.g. Lets do the exercise

Shall we do the exercise?

Don't lets / lets not.

e.g. Don't lets attempt sneaking out of school

Lets not attempt sneaking out of school.

Why don't we / you + infinitive

e.g. Why don't we draw a timetable?

Why don't we go to the filed?

Why not + infinitive

e.g. Why not meet for lunch at sunset.

What / how about + gerund / noun

How about borrowing money?

What about meeting for lunch at sunset hotel.

Suppose I / we / you + present or past tense.

e.g. Suppose we borrowed money?

Suppose we have lunch at sunset.

INTERROGATIVE SENTENCES

These are question forms

In English, questions are introduced by:

(a) Relative pronoun

e.g. Who came to school?

Whom did you see?

(b) Auxiliary verbs:

e.g. Did he come to school?

Have they found the bag?

Is she in school?

C. EXCLAMATORY SENTENCES

These may be expressed using inversion:

e.g. (i) I will never take beer – Never will I take beer.

(iii) This is a very beautiful piece of art – The speaker uses inversion and the compliment comes before the noun.

In the first example, the subject I comes after the auxiliary ‘will’ and before the main verb ‘take’.

D. DECLARATIVE SENTENCES

These are the commonest type of sentence constructions.

These sentences are stative and they do not carry an exclamation, an interrogative, a negative aspect or even an Imperative.

They are positive statements.

e.g. He came by bus.

She mopped the room.

E. NEGATIVE SENTENCES

Negative sentences can be formed in the following ways.

Adjective NO

We may add the adjectives no to the declarative.

e.g. There were books in the library. (declarative)

There were no books in the library. (negative)

I had money for shopping. (Declarative) I had no money for shopping. (negative)

Pronoun none:

e.g. Do you have any money with you?

(Interrogative) No, I have none (negative)

All / some boys came to class (affirmative)

None of the boys came to class (negative)

Adverb Not + Any

e.g. I got some money from him (affirmative)

I did not get any money from him (negative)

Coordinate conjunction neither ...nor

e.g. Either Jane or Mary is in class (affirmative)

Neither Jane nor Mary is in class (negative)

N.B Neither nor and Either... or have a singular meaning. The verb that follows them is therefore singular.

e.g. Neither Wekesa nor Onyango has arrived.

CLAUSES

A clause is a segment of speech larger than a phrase and having a finite verb (verb with tense)

Sentences are comprised of clauses. Sentences may be classified according to the clauses that form them.

Simple sentences:

These are sentences with only one clause.

e.g. John bought a book
S V O

e.g. Odera came

She is here
S V A

The above sentences consist of only one clause

Compound sentences

These sentences comprise of two independent clauses joined by a coordinating conjunction.

An independent clause is able to stand on its own (meaningfully) in a sentence.

e.g. Kioko came. Kioko sat down
S V S V A

The above sentences can be considered to have two independent clauses.

We can join the two sentences using a coordinating conjunction.

Kioko came and sat down.

In the second clause, the subject 'Kioko' is not to be unnecessarily repeated.

COMPLEX SENTENCES

These sentences consist of a main clause and one or more dependent (subordinate) clauses.

e.g. Nelly sat where the books had been kept Independent subordinate .c.

He saw the man who abducted the girl.

Main clause dependent clause

If you work hard, you will pass in exams.

Dependent (subordinate) independent

The first example has the subordinate clause acting as an adverb.

In the second sentence, the dependent clause is introduced by a relative pronoun and it is an adjectival clause.

In the third sentence, the subordinate clause is a conditional (if clause).

COMPOUND – COMPLEX SENTENCES

These sentences consist of two or more main (independent clauses) and one or more dependent clauses.

e.g. He came, sat down and smiled at the girls who stared at him.
1 2 3 4

In the above sentence, clause 1, 2 and 3 are independent and clause 4 is dependent (subordinate)

ACTIVE AND PASSIVE VOICE:

In the chapter on verbs, it was observed that some verbs are transitive. i.e. They allow objects after them.

e.g. They opened the door.

S V O

He kicked the ball.

S V O

The above sentences are in active form. Active sentences have the subject coming before the verb.

Sometimes however, a speaker or writer may not wish to focus on the 'subject' but on the 'object' of the sentence.

e.g. The ball was kicked (by him)

The door was opened (by them)

When sentences are inverted in this manner, we say they are in the passive voice.

There are several reasons why writers may use the passive voice as opposed to the active voice.

When it is not necessary to mention who the doer of the action is.

e.g. My shoes were stolen (by a thief)

He was arrested (by the police)

When the doer of the action is not exactly known.

e.g. The house was built ten years ago.

Streetlights in Nairobi have been improved.

When we are more interested in the action than the one who does it. e.g.

A new hostel is being put up.

Students are required to buy books.

In official documents e.g. minutes, reports, official letters e.t.c

e.g. It was agreed that every member contributes a hundred shillings.

(v) When describing a process or procedure.

When the water boils, four handfuls of flour are added to it. The flour is stirred three times after the temperature has risen.

The above example could be an excerpt in the procedure for cooking porridge.

CONDITIONAL CLAUSES

In the subtopic on complex sentences, it was observed that conditional clauses are subordinate clauses. Let us focus on conditional clauses in detail. Conditional sentences have two parts:

The 'if- clause' and the main clause

e.g. If it rains, I shall stay indoors.

There are several types of conditional clauses.

TYPE 1: CONSTRUCTIONS IN PRESENT FORM

The verb in the 'if clause' is in the present tense and the verb in the main clause is in the future simple.

It doesn't matter which clause comes first. e.g. If it rains, I shall stay indoors.

This type of conditional sentence implies that the action in the 'if – clause' is quite probable.

Instead of if + present + future, we may have: (a) if + present + may/might. This construction expresses possibility.

e.g. If my mother pays, I might go for the trip.

(b) If + present + may (permission)

e.g. If it rains, we may go out. (We are allowed to go out)

If + present + must / should or any other imperative expression.(i.e. To express command, request or advice)

e.g. If you want to pass, you must work hard.

If + present + present.

This construction is used to express automatic or habitual results.

e.g. If you immerse litmus into acid, it changes colour.

If you heat ice, it melts into water.

Variation of if – clause:

Instead of if + present tense, we can have:

(a) If + present continuous.

This construction is used to indicate a present action or a future arrangement.

If you are making noise, please keep quiet.

If you are waiting for her, you'd better go home.

If + present perfect.

e.g. If you have lost money, check with the accounts clerk.

TYPE TWO: CONSTRUCTIONS IN PAST FORM.

The verb in the 'if clause' is in the past tense and the verb in the main clause is in the conditional tense.

e.g. If I had money, I would buy a loaf of bread.

(But I haven't money. The meaning here is present)

This type may be used when the supposition (or wish) is contrary to known facts) If I knew French, I would work with a different ministry. (But I don't know French) If I were you, I'd not listen to the young man.

(But I am not you).

This construction is also used when one, doesn't expect the action in the 'if clause' to take place.

e.g. If I contracted A.I.D S, I would tell everyone (but I don't expect to contract A.I.DS).

Other ways of expressing conditionals:

The following words may be used to express conditional clauses.

Whether, even if, unless, but for, otherwise, provided, suppose, even though and incase.

Even if = even though.

You must go tomorrow, even if you are not ready.

Whether ...or = if ... or

You must go whether you are ready or not.

You must go, if you are ready or not.

Unless + affirmative verb = if + negative.

e.g. Unless you go to school, you will not succeed in future.

You will not succeed in future if you won't go to school.

But for = if it were not for / if it hadn't been for.

But for my grand father, I wouldn't have gone to school.

If it hadn't been for my grand father, I wouldn't have gone to school.

Otherwise = if this doesn't happen / didn't happen / hadn't happened. We must be back before midnight, otherwise will be locked out.

Provided (that)

This can replace if when there is a strong idea of limitation or restriction.

It is chiefly used in permission.

You can go to class provided that you don't make noise.

Suppose / supposing...? = What if...?

Suppose the bus is late? = What will happen if the bus is late?

Suppose can also introduce suggestions.

e.g. Suppose we visit him in hospital? = Why don't we visit him?

(i) Incase:

An in case clause gives a reason for the action in the main clause.

e.g. I wrote a telegram in case my letter didn't arrive.

N.B An in case clause can be dropped without changing the meaning of the main clause. In a conditional sentence however, the action of the main clause depends on the action in the if clause. If the, ' if clause ' is dropped, the meaning of the main clause changes.

If only.

This is used to indicate hope, wish or regret.

If only + 'present tense' will express hope.

e.g. If only I pass in the forthcoming exams. = I hope to pass in the forth-coming exams.

If only + past / past perfect = this will express regret.

e.g. If only I had known, I would have worked harder.

DIRECT AND INDIRECT SPEECH

When one is using the direct speech

The exact words of each speaker are enclosed in inverted commas. e.g.

“Father, please buy me an English text book,” I said.

A comma is placed just before the closing inverted commas.

e.g She said, “come here.”

Every time there is a change of speaker, one must begin on a new line.

e.g. “Did you write the essay?” the teacher asked.

“I’m sorry I was unwell,” I replied.

Sometimes when there are only two speakers, we can tell whose speech comes next, so the writer does not always have to indicate the speaker by saying he said or she asked.

e.g. “Are you calling your teacher a liar?

“No sir”

“No, sir”

“This record shows you’ve no real interest in English.”

Speech tags may appear before, in the middle or at the end of the direct speech.

I said, “Father, there’s a snake in my bedroom.”

“Father, “I said, “there’s a snake in my bedroom.”

“Father, there’s a snake in my bedroom,” I said.

The speech must always start with a capital letter but when the sentences is broken by a speech tag, the second half of the sentence will start with a small letter.

A comma must also be placed immediately after the speech

tag. e.g. “James, ” Jane shouted, “our team has won!”

When a speech tag comes after a complete statement, a question or an exclamation mark, the next word starts with a capital letter.

INDIRECT SPEECH

The indirect speech seeks to clarify information not quite understood.

The indirect speech uses the speech tags used in the direct speech, keeping the tense of the speech tag of the direct speech.

The speech tag of the indirect speech can also be suggested by the tone or intention of the indirect speech.

Some of the common speech tags are; he said, she wondered, I replied, they reminded, she ordered, he commanded, she shouted, they said, I thought e.t.c

The pronouns usually change in indirect speech depending on who is reporting the speech and to whom he is reporting. In changing pronouns, the general rule in reported speech is as follows:

PRONOUN: DIRECT SPEECH	PRONOUN: INDIRECT SPEECH
I	He/she
We	They/you
He/she	He/she
You	Him/her/me/us/them/they
Us	Them/you
Them	Them

My	Her/his
Your	My/his/her/our/their
Our	Their/your
Their	Their
Mine	Hers/his
Yours	Mine/his/hers/ours/theirs
Ours	Hers/yours
Theirs	Theirs

The time of the events usually changes according to the speech tag used and the time the original speech is supposed to have been made. Below are some of examples:

DIRECT SPEECH	INDIRECT SPEECH
Today	That day
Now	Then /at that time
Two hours ago	Two hours before
Yesterday	The day before, the previous day
Last week	The week before (then), the previous week
This afternoon	That afternoon
Tomorrow	The following day, the day after
Next week /month	The following week / month
The day after tomorrow	Two days after

The number of verbs in direct speech remains the same in reported speech. This is necessary if the meaning of what is said is to be retained.

SPEECH AND TENSE

Single verbs in the present tense in direct speech change into single verbs in the past tense in the reported speech.

e.g. "I feel sick" she said.

She said that she felt sick.

Compound verbs with two elements in the present tense change into compound verbs with two elements in the past tense.

e.g. "I have been singing in the choir" she said.

She said that she had been singing in the choir.

Statements in the direct speech already in the past tense retain their form of speech.

e.g. "I saw him run" he said.

He said that he saw him run.

"I intended to become a writer" she said.

She said (that) she intended to become a writer.

Reported questions:

When reporting questions, the rule about tense harmony applies to reported questions as to direct speech statements.

If the introductory part (he said, she remarked) are in the past tense, then the verb in direct speech becomes a past tense verb when reported.

e.g. He asked, "where is Jane?"

He asked where Jane was.

Questions in direct speech become statements in reported speech, therefore with a normal subject – verb relationship.

“What is your name?” “She asked.

She asked what my name was.

INVERSIONS

Certain verbs and adverbial phrases can for emphasis be placed first in a sentence or clause and are then followed by the inverted form of the verb.

Below are some of words and phrases commonly used in inversions.

Hardly ever:

This is a negative adverb of frequency (i.e. it expresses how often in a negative sense)

e.g. He hardly ever goes to see her.

Hardly ever does he go to see her? (Inverted)

Hardly scarcely and barely are almost negative in meaning.

Hardly is mainly used with any, ever, at all or the modal can.

e.g. I hardly ever use my mother tongue in school.

Inversion: hardly ever do I use mother tongue in school.

Other words used in inversion include:

Never, hardly...when, in no circumstances, neither...nor, no sooner...than, not only...but also, not till, nowhere, on no account, only by, only then... when, scarcely ever, scarcely...when seldom, so.

Examples:

She doesn't in any circumstance accept bribes.

In no circumstances does she accept bribes.

They had hardly alighted from the bus when the accident occurred.

Hardly had they alighted from the bus when the accident occurred.

He had no sooner taken the water than he began complaining of stomach pains.

No sooner had he taken the water than he begun complaining of stomach pains.
